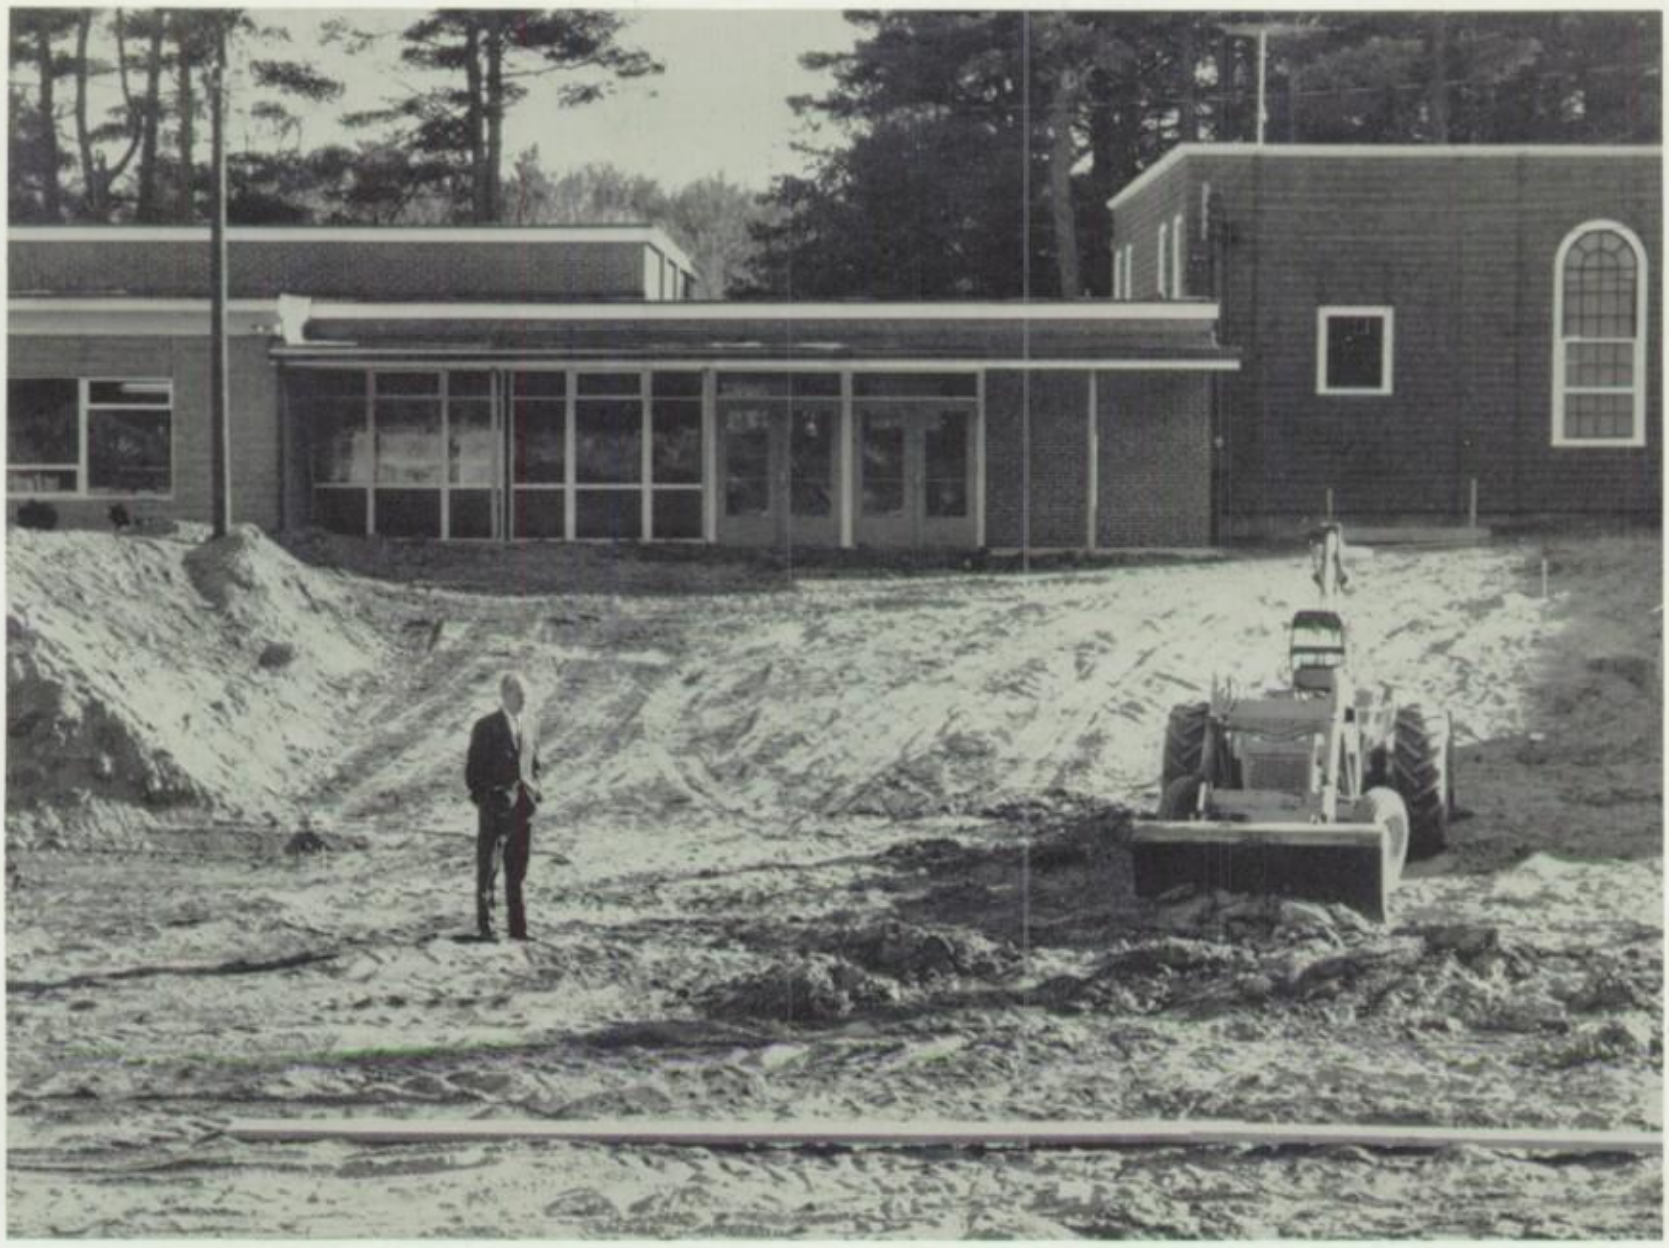
PINECONE

We, the class of 1965, with sincere respect and appreciation, wish to dedicate our yearbook, the PYNECONE, to:

Mrs. Viola Sullivan. As her first graduating class, we would like to express our appreciation for her instructive teaching that has guided our future.



Through the years spent in these distinguished realms, the mystery and majesty of life's web has been unspindled before us. As we tour the remnants of our high school past, let us be mindful of the change and pledge the ghosts of former high school past have rendered us. "Carry Her torch high, and bear it well--for now we fall. And Hell's gates stand not so high that the sound of freedom's soldiers cannot be heard."

Pynecone Staff

STANDING: Mr. Callghan, Advisor. SEATED: Frank Eaton, Kathy Callaghan, Robin Welch, Charles Chase, Betty Perkins.

The publication of this yearbook marks the end of another school year. From this yearbook I hope you will perceive the true character of our cherished school. The PYNECONE will serve as a remembrance of our classmates, teachers and never-to-be-forgotten school days. Some of our recollections may be very vivid, others may be faint, but our own individual memories are a cherished possession that no one else can own.

I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to the advertisers who make this yearbook possible and to thank the Senior class, the Junior co-editors and especially Mr. Callaghan, yearbook advisor, for their co-operation.

Superintendent's Message

It is trite to say that the world is growing smaller when we are living in an age which is conquering space, and when air transports of two thousand miles per hour are on the drawing boards. In such a world, the individual's actions and reactions become increasingly more important, rather than less so, because the "ripple" caused by one person travels quicker and with more energy than it did a few years ago. The act of a single person in any part of the world may become known immediately around the world, and may start a chain reaction no one can stop. Any human being's conduct thus becomes more important today than that of chieftains and even national leaders three hundred years ago.

The crux of this problem is that most individuals are not aware of their importance or their responsibilities, and no permanent solutions are possible until they realize that with freedom of action comes tremendous obligations.

We could cite innumerable examples of thoughtless action around the world, but let us think more carefully about our own actions as members of national, state and local societies, and be willing to accept our fair share of our obligations as well as being thankful for our freedoms.

C. Maurice Gray
Superintendent

Principal's Message

"Things are moving so fast these days that people who say 'it can't be done' are often interrupted by someone doing it." Consequently, the individual who delays initiating a course of action until conditions are ideal may never get to see it to completion.

Procrastination not only delays one's arrival at a given destination, but it may, in this day and age, actually prevent it.

The right time to do a thing is right now - who is to say when there will ever be a better time.

My sincere congratulations and Godspeed.

I quit!

Look out for Scuffers!

Only missed by 2 ft.
that time!

Hey! The basket is the other way!

Look at the flying saucer!

Maybe I'll hit it if I close my eyes!

Did you use Ban?

The idea of the game is to kick
the ball, not the man!

Catching grasshoppers?

Look, ma, no hands!

Don't tell the Russians our secret!

What are you waiting for? I made it.

Anyone for a swim!

Now we will do the first movement of Kolinokov's symphony in G minor.

Give it to the ref - he's open!

I'm really waving to my mother.

Look at the footprints on the ceiling!

2 to 1, it goes in!
